

Week 5 Parents Guide

This week we are looking at keeping young people safe when lockdown is lifted. Young people have been in a protected environment for several weeks now where things like risk and staying safe have not been needed so we just wanted to remind them of those crucial guidelines so that they do not suddenly find themselves forgetting everything they have learnt before because they are just so happy to be out and about again- a feeling we obviously will all relate to but none the more for that we will still need to remember the simple guidance from before!

So, this week we are asking your young person to write a story/advice sheet for a person that is younger than themselves about what to do when they are out to keep them safe- what advice would they give. By writing for a younger person it will help your young person by reminding them of what they need to think about and help to develop a greater and more thorough understanding of the advice you have no doubt been giving them for years!

Again, if you would like to share their finished products that would be great!

Our family challenge is really quite simple and consolidates the things we have been looking at over these past few weeks. We hope you have fun and it gets you working together.
